The Bureau of Engraving and Printing (Bureau) will exhibit at the American Numismatic Association (ANA), July 30-August 3, 2003, at the Baltimore Convention Center, 1 West Pratt Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201.

INTAGLIO PRINT CARD

"The Flag" Intaglio Print card features the female figure formerly entitled "Electricity" (miscellaneous die #2907) originally engraved in 1883 and altered in August 1885 by substituting the image of a flag for electric wire. Lorenzo J. Hatch (1856-1914) was the engraver. He became an apprentice at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at age 18 and worked there until 1887 when he left to work with private security printers.

2003-06

Peace and Flag (miscellaneous die #6100) was engraved by George Frederick Cummings Smillie (G.F.C. Smillie) in 1903 and hardened October 28, 1909. G.F.C. Smillie was one of the more prolific engravers employed by the Bureau. He became an engraver on March 19, 1894 and in 1918 became Superintendent of the Picture Engraving Department before retiring March 31, 1922. During his tenure at the Bureau, he engraved portraits of Presidents, Secretaries of the Treasury, and various government officials. Other Bureau products featuring his work included Federal Reserve Notes, Gold and Silver Certificates, National Bank Notes, Military Payment Certificates, and bonds.

The eagle vignette (miscellaneous die #7242) was engraved in 1909 by Robert Ponickau, hardened in 1917 and ultimately transferred onto miscellaneous dies #9918 and #11745. It appeared on the 1918 series $1 Federal Reserve Bank Note, the back of the 1919 Victory Liberty Loan (miscellaneous die #9918), and a Navy Department warrant (miscellaneous die #11745). He was appointed to the Bureau on October 16, 1893 and died while still employed there on March 3, 1920.

The Bureau will feature more than a billion dollars of antique currency, Treasury Bonds and Gold and Silver Certificates.
